LABORER KILLED BY SCALDING TODAY

PETER GARCIA, EMPLOYEE OF S. F. CONTRACTOR, DIES WHEN PIPE ON BOARD VESSEL BURSTS; WORKERS NARROWLY ESCAPE

Peter Garcia was almost instantly killed and Joe Ruiz was injured by the exploding of a steam pipe on board a ship at the Schaw-Batcher shipyards to-day just before noon.

According to the best accounts obtainable, the men were working on the final fittings of a practically completed ship at the yards. The vessel's boilers were charged with steam under pressure, when one of the pipes burst. Garcia was so badly scalded that he died within a few minutes. The burns suffered by Ruiz were not serious, he being able to return to his home after receiving emergency treatment at the hospital in the yards. There were five men in a group, of whom Garcia and Ruiz were two, when the explosion took place, but by a miracle the others escaped uninjured.

Garcia and Ruiz were both Mexicans, residents of San Francisco, and were not employees of the Schaw-Batcher Company, being at work for a San Francisco contractor named Martin. Garcia was a man of about 25 years. It is understood his only relatives are a brother and father living in the city. His body was brought to the undertaking parlors of S. Neri. No funeral arrangements have yet been made.

S. F. MAN PAYS $100 FINE IN BATTERY CASE

W. J. Smith heard two cases in the justice's court Thursday morning.

The first was that of C. H. Owen, the automobile dealer who on the 16th of July ran into a buggy driven by Mrs. Catherine Buechel of Colma. Mrs. Buechel was seriously injured, being in the South San Francisco Hospital for about five weeks as a consequence. Her son, John Buechel, swore to a complaint charging Owen with battery. At his preliminary hearing Owen pleaded "not guilty," but on his appearance Thursday morning he changed his plea to "guilty" and was fined $500. While in the courtroom Owen was served with papers in a suit filed against him in the superior court by Mrs. Buechel, asking damages in the sum of $5260.

The second case was that of two brothers, V. Corrucciani and A. Corrucciani, the complaint, sworn to by L. E. Adams, stating that they were keeping their daughters, Leiva and Nellie Corrucciani, out of school. The two girls appeared in court and each claimed to be over 16 years of age, but when asked their ages in August of 1918, one replied 13 years and 6 months, the other 14 years and 8 months. Justice Smith ordered that the girls obtain their birth certificates from Italy as evidence, but in the meantime return to school. Later in the day the two girls appeared at Smith's office, and Nellie produced a birth certificate showing her to have been born in May of 1904. They declared Leiva to be two months younger. Both promised to return to school.

Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE TO MEET

Workers in Campaign for Funds for Social Rooms and Playground to Check Results.

The executive committee of the campaign to raise funds to establish a Y. M. C. A. recreation room and playground in this city will hold a meeting next Wednesday evening at the Industrial Club for the purpose of making a final checking over of the subscriptions obtained.

The results of the campaign have been for the most part quite gratifying. A great majority of those approached has responded liberally, and rooms and grounds are assured for the near future. So far as exact results have been tallied about $5500 has been subscribed for the establishment of the "Y" work here and its maintenance for one year. It is believed by all in touch with "Y" work in other places that when the people here have enjoyed its benefits for one year there will be no trouble at all in getting the subscriptions increased for the work in the future.

Secretary David L. Smith states that he thinks it will be possible to move into the Metropolitan Hall, where the social rooms will be fitted, by the latter part of next week, and that work on the playground will start by September 25th.

ROOSEVELT MEMORIAL WORKERS TO MEET IN THE CITY MONDAY

It has been announced that a meeting for county chairmen of the organization to build a memorial to former President Roosevelt will be held at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco Monday afternoon at 2:30. The meeting will be addressed by Chester Rowell of Fresno, a personal friend of Mr. Roosevelt, and by Theodore Roosevelt Jr.

THE MAKING OF OPEN-HEARTH STEEL

SEEING THE FINISHED PRODUCT MANUFACTURED; TRACING ITS COURSE FROM SCRAP THROUGH FURNACES AND ROLLING MILLS

LITTLE JOURNEYS THROUGH THE INDUSTRIAL PLANTS OF SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, THE HOME OF MANUFACTURING INTERESTS.

One of the largest of South San Francisco's industrial plants is that of the Pacific Coast Steel Company, employing as it does about 750 men, with a monthly payroll of approximately $100,000, its buildings and yards covering some eighteen acres. Here, day and night, the manufacture of "open-hearth" steel, this company's specialty, goes on.

Loading the Scrap

It is a far cry from the "scrap" steel, piled in huge mounds at one side of the great building that houses the furnaces, to the finished product of high-grade metal loaded on the railroad cars that enter the plant on the west. To bring about the change the material passes through many hands and many expensive, highly developed processes, as explained to the writer by T. J. Brooks, manager of the plant's local office, and Steve Nyland, himself a skilled employee at one of the "rolls" where the hot metal is given the form in which it goes out into the world to become a part of some scheme of construction.

First the "scrap" is gathered into iron boxes loaded on small flatcars drawn on a miniature railroad by a diminutive engine. There are many of these little tracks laid here and there throughout the plant, and back and forth over them ply the strings of small cars drawn by steam and gasoline engines—three of the former and two of the latter being in use. The

THIRTEENTH VESSEL IS LAUNCHED HERE

Mrs. H. O. Shuster Acts as Sponsor for West Cahokin; Prominent Persons at Ceremony.

A considerable concourse of people attended the launching of the thirteenth vessel at the Schaw-Batcher shipyards Sunday morning at 11:45 o'clock. The gathering included Congressman Patrick Kelly of Michigan, Congressman D. I. Walsh of Massachusetts, A. J. Frey and William Chisholm of the shipping board, and W. H. Talbot, general manager of the Schaw-Batcher Company. Mrs. H. O. Shuster, wife of the chief engineer of the Schaw-Batcher Company, acted as sponsor for the ship, naming it the West Cahokin, the title, like those of vessels that have preceded this one, being selected by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. Congressman Kelly wielded one of the axes that liberated the big ship and allowed it to slide into the water. There are now four more vessels on the ways at the shipyard, the keel of the fourth having been laid after the launching of the West Cahokin. The ship launched was of the 8800-ton type, like those that have preceded it at these yards.

SIX FROM THIS CITY LEARN THE MYSTERIES OF ELKHOOD

Six young men of South San Francisco were Wednesday night initiated into the mysteries of the antlered fraternity and are now full-blown Elk. The ceremonies took place at San Mateo, about 300 members from lodges all over the county being in attendance. A class of twelve was taken into the order, the six from this city being Etienne Fourcans, Artie Matheson, Charles Genasci, Horace A. Bewley, Harry Cavassa and Al J. Eschelbach. After the initiation a venison supper was served. Several of those who attended the supper have expressed a strong suspicion that the stew served was flavored only with venison, most of the "filling" having a strong resemblance to beef. All are unanimous, however, in declaring they had a fine time.

CORONER'S JURY CLEARS BOY DRIVER

FRANK AMARILLO, SANTA CLARA STUDENT, HELD BLAMELESS IN DEATH OF WOMAN KILLED BY HIS AUTO AT SAN BRUNO.

"The deceased met her death by being struck by an automobile in an unavoidable accident." That was the verdict of the coroner's jury that met in the city hall in this city Wednesday evening in the case of Mrs. Emma F. Hermann, killed at the San Bruno electric railroad crossing Tuesday afternoon. The jury thus exonerates Frank Amarillo, the Santa Clara student who was driving the car. After the accident Amarillo was arrested on a charge of manslaughter, but was released by Justice of the Peace Ray Griffen of Redwood City.

The accident occurred just after Mrs. Hermann and her husband, Howard Hermann, had stepped from the San Mateo car at the San Bruno crossing. They were about to visit Mrs. G. Dreger of San Bruno, a sister of Mrs. Hermann. They had stopped to inquire the way of a child standing near by. The highway was filled with holiday pleasure cars at the time. Mrs. Hermann, her attention still on the child, had started to walk away, and stepped directly in front of the car. Amarillo, who was accompanied by four other Santa Clara students, tried to avoid striking the woman, but was too close. Mr. Hermann, testifying at the inquest, stated that he saw his wife's danger and reached out to drag her back, but was too late. The woman lived but a few minutes after the car had passed over her body.

Mrs. Hermann, who was 57 years of age, was buried Friday morning from the family residence at 3812 Twenty-first street, San Francisco, the arrangements being in charge of S. Neri of this city. Burial was in Cypress Lawn Cemetery.

LOCAL BANK WILL HAVE HAND GRENADES

Mrs. John L. McGinn, director of the war savings organization for San Mateo, was in South San Francisco Wednesday arranging for the distribution here of hand grenade savings banks to school children and others in a campaign to encourage thrift. The grenades will be distributed through the Bank of South San Francisco for the district including this city, Colma, Daly City, Lomita Park, and San Bruno.

These novel savings banks were originally genuine hand grenades, manufactured in the United States for shipment to the American boys engaged in strafing the Huns. The explosive has been removed, otherwise they are real grenades. To obtain one, a child from 1 to 12 years must purchase one $5 savings stamp, a person from 12 to 18 must buy two $5 stamps, while a person over 18 must buy one $100 or one $1000 savings certificate. The campaign closes December 1st. L. E. Adams is committeeman from this city for the campaign, Henry Haaker and Robert Speed are members of the county advisory committee.

MAKING OF OPEN-HEARTH STEEL.

loading on the cars is done with a circular magnet about the size of a washtub, that dangles from a traveling crane. The disk is dropped on the pile of loose fragments, then raised and swung to the cars with a hundred pounds or more of "scrap" clinging to its surface, held by magnetism. When the current is turned off the loose pieces drop into the boxes. Two cranes with magnets are in constant operation unloading cars of "scrap" as they arrive in the yards or loading the material on its way to the furnace.

To the Furnaces

The little train loaded, it switches to the track running into the building along the line of furnaces. There are five of these huge ovens for converting the loose fragments of metal with the other ingredients that enter into the "open-hearth" steel into the glowing fluid that pours like waters. And the other materials that go into the furnace with the steel are ferro manganese, ferro silicon, limestone, and coke. The whole is heated until reduced to a practically liquid form. Looking through peep-holes in the furnace doors, with eyes protected by colored glasses, one can see the mixture bubbling inside like boiling water. Oil is used to heat the furnace, being piped down from a reservoir holding 654,000 gallons on the hill above the plant. A heat as high as 3200 degrees is generated. To resist such a heat each furnace is lined with silica brick, a costly material, but the only one known that will answer the purpose. The oil is fed in from both ends of the furnace alternately, in order that all the melting mass inside may get an even heat. Connected with each furnace is a bulletin board upon which is chalked up the weight of the material that went into the "heat," the time it was put in, the number of the heat, the number of heats that furnace has produced since being relined—each furnace must be relined with silica brick after a certain number of heats—the number of ingots obtained from the last heat, etc., in fact, a complete family history of each heat. And the heat number can be traced along through the course the ingots take, each being chalked with its heat number, which serves as its passport to further developments.

"Pouring"

The time taken to the average heat is about eleven hours. Before the metal is ready to pour, a group of about twenty movable molds, some six or seven feet long and about a foot square, have been brought by one of the great cranes that travel high overhead and arranged in a group standing on end. Then a mighty bucket or "ladle," with a capacity of forty tons of molten metal, is placed under the spout leading down from the furnace, all the rear of the building where the "pouring" is done being about ten feet lower than the level of the furnaces. When the furnace is "tapped," the glowing liquid pours forth like water. Comes then the crane again, raises the ladle over the upright molds, when it is tapped from the bottom and its glowing contents pour into the forms. After a short time the molds are raised by the crane, the metal inside, now hardened but still red-hot and now an "ingot," being left standing. As soon as the ingots are cooled the ever-present crane carries them to the end of the building, where they are piled up to await the next process, after first being chalked with their "heat number."

Ingots to Billets

The next step is the reduction of the ingots of steel, each about seven feet long, nine or ten inches square, and averaging about 1400 pounds in weight, to "billets." The ingots are loaded on a car and started toward another furnace in a building close by. On their way they pass over a scale, where a careful record is kept of their heat number and weight. The same careful checking and recording is met with at every step in the different processes, from the time the scrap steel is weighed into the first furnace until the finished fine product is loaded on cars for its trip out into the world. Careful records are kept, everything is accounted for.

Next the ingots are placed on high iron skids, facing the end of another long furnace. This huge receptacle holds seventy-two of the big steel logs laid side by side. At the other end the ingots are taken out almost white hot and ready for "rolling." As each one is taken out at one end a whistle is blown and an apparatus like a battering ram pushes the whole row up one notch, another ingot entering the fire.

Out of the heat comes the glowing billet, to be caught on a movable platform where rollers hurry it to the powerful revolving presses through which it must pass. As it emerges on the other side of this roll it is caught again by a similar car on the other side and shot back through another opening in the rolling apparatus. Back and forth the two cars send the ingot which, as it receives the pressure on its sides, grows to three times its former length and a third its former thickness. Then it is cut into billets from three to six feet in length.

Rolling the Billets

The billets pass through a similar process of heating and rolling, with the difference that now they are of a size and weight that makes it possible to handle them by hand. Now the rolls have two or three men on either side, and as the ever-lengthening bar emerges on one side it is seized by tongs in the hands of the man waiting for it and sent back through another opening in the roll to the other side. In the final roll, when it has been reduced to a flat bar, perhaps an inch wide and a quarter of an inch thick, the glowing ribbon, 140 feet long, may be going back and forth through the rolls three ways at the same time. And the speed and dexterity with which the waiting "roughers" or workmen seize the red-hot steel bar, whirl it about and reinsert it between the rolls, is almost incredible.

It may be that the steel billet is to be reduced to "angle steel"; then it never reaches the smaller rolls, but passes back and forth through rolls that press it into an elongated angle.

In either case, its next step is the same. From the rolls it is carried on rapidly turning rollers down a long alley to the straightening floor, which is composed of iron bars. As it passes to this floor, the rapidly turning rollers that convey it along the alley give its fiery form an undulating motion for all the world like the movements of a swiftly moving serpent. Taken from the iron straightening floor, it is allowed to cool before going to the shears that clip it into any desired length. It is now ready to be loaded on cars and taken out into the world.

Other Parts of Plant

In this short article no attempt has been made to cover the big Pacific Coast Steel mill thoroughly. Space forbids. Many departments will be merely touched upon.

The plant has its own machine shop on the grounds. Here many men work constantly at lathes and other machine shop appliances dressing tools, rolls, etc. From being constantly in use the rolls that give shape to the hot steel become worn and are often taken out and their surfaces dressed in the machine shop.

The plant has its own blacksmith shop, large and well equipped. A number of forges, each with its smith and helpers, are kept constantly busy. It is a shop where the ancient and honorable craft of the smith reaches its highest development.

In one large shop a half dozen vats some fifteen feet long treat the steel to a coating of "galvanizing" that protects it from rust. The coating is composed of a secret mixture, in which lead is an important ingredient.

The plant has its own shop for sawing lumber, equipped with appliances such as go with a modern shop of the kind.

Last in the list in this article, but one of the first in importance of the many departments, is the laboratory. Here many mysterious tests and processes take place. The material used such as ferro manganese and ferro silicon come under the observation of the chemist. One of his most important duties, however, is to make an analysis of every "heat," from which careful records are kept of the chemical parts of every piece of steel that the plant turns out.

Altogether, it is a most interesting trip, that through the steel mill. One comes away with several distinct impressions, one being the care and exactitude with which every process in the making of the plant's steel is governed. Another is the skill and rapidity with which the men handle the red-hot ingots and billets at the rolls. Still another is the thoroughly modern way in which the plant is equipped with huge traveling cranes. They are present in every department where heavy lifting is done, moving silently here and there, giants of power, doing the work of hundreds of men, having a capacity up to seventy-five tons.

MRS. BUECHEL BRINGS DAMAGE SUIT FOR AUTO ACCIDENT

Mrs. Catherine Buechel of Colma, who was injured July 16th when the buggy in which she was riding was struck and overturned by a car driven by C. H. Owen, an automobile dealer of San Francisco, has brought suit against Mr. Owen in the superior court at Redwood City for $5260 damages. Mrs. Buechel spent about five weeks in the South San Francisco Hospital suffering with a broken shoulder.

A pantry well filled with home-canned and otherwise preserve fruits and vegetables means more varied, attractive, and wholesome diet during the winter months, as well as cheaper living.

ASKS DAMAGES FOR DEATH CAUSED BY RUNAWAY CAR

Mrs. Clorinda Noce and two minor children, Josephine and Ellen, all of Colma, have brought suit against the United Railroads Company of San Francisco for $75,000 damages for the death of David Noce, husband of Mrs. Noce and father of the children. Noce was killed by a runaway car at Colma, July 22d. The suit was filed in Redwood City last Saturday.

Something! Yes, he had something. Drink-House Sam of Singapore!

Captain Laynton spoke again:

"Look here!" he said in almost hurt tones. "I can't make you any fairer proposition than that. Can I?"

"No," said Wallen instantly, his mind made up. "And I'll accept your offer, captain, and thank you heartily for it."

"Good!" returned Laynton promptly. "Well, with that settled, what's the sailing orders? We've got steam up and can get away any minute you say the word."

Wallen walked to the cabin door and opened it.

"Then by all means get away at once!" he laughed easily. "And"—he hesitated—"let's see! I guess you'd better shape up for Singapore. Yes, call it Singapore for a starter."

"Right!" answered Laynton. "Singapore it is! But here—wait a minute, Mr. Wallen."

He hurried to a small iron safe that was built in under his bunk, opened it, and returned with a bulky manila envelope, which he handed to Wallen.

"These are your father's papers," he explained. "I collected them to-

"These Are Your Father's Papers." together and put them away for safe-keeping."

"Thank you," said Wallen gravely. He stepped out onto the deck. "Oh, by the way, captain," he observed casually, "I notice you carry wireless."

The captain's whistle, pulled from his pocket, chirped shrilly.

"You there, forward!" he bawled in a sea voice that was like the bellow of a bull. "Stand by to weigh anchor, Mr. Mott! Hey, Mr. Mott!"

And as the second officer emerged from the chartroom, just abaft the bridge and directly over the captain's cabin: "We'll get under way at once. Let me know when she's up and down."

He turned to Wallen. "Wireless, you said? Oh, yes; it's that blasted new American law—can't trade in American ports without it now, you know."

CHAPTER IV.

The Hand Sinister.

The moonlight bathed her in a soft luminance as she leaned over the ship's rail; and it seemed to Wallen that he had never seen so beautiful a face. No, "beautiful" wasn't the word at all. It was more than that—a something that counted for more than mere prettiness of features.

"I know you're just dying to find out how I came aboard here," she laughed. "I could see it in your face every time you looked at me at supper."

"Yes," Wallen admitted. "That's true, Miss MacKay. In fact, I've been waiting here on deck for ages to ask you."

She did not answer at once—she was leaning farther over the rail, her eyes fixed on the bubbling phosphorescence as it gilded past the ship's hull.

"You are a western man, as we speak of the West here, Mr. Wallen," she said at last seriously; "and perhaps you do not know the East very well—that is, the outpost East, as I call it. Conventions here are—quite different. You, I am sure, are mentally disapproving of my presence on board; you are thinking that I should be accompanied by my mother or my father or a brother, or at least by a female companion of some sort, instead of which I have only—this."

She drew her hand from her pocket, and in the open palm, as she rested it on the rail, lay a small but very serviceable automatic pistol.

It was unexpected, abrupt, and it startled him. He stared blankly at the exquisite silver chalice of the thing as it glistened in the moonbeams.

"But—but to be where that is—necessary?" he ventured, a little awkwardly.

She shook her head as she returned the weapon to her pocket.

"I do not mean it in that sense—that it is necessary," she answered.

"Those of us who live in the islands of the Peninsula are brought up with firearms from the time almost that we can walk, and conventions with us follow the code framed by the conditions which surround us."

"It's—it's quite different from"—she laughed outright, merrily now—"Vassar, for example. I was there two years. And so you see, Mr. Wallen, if one wants to go anywhere down here it is simply a question of availing oneself of the first opportunity, whatever it may be."

"It's a very homy and commonplace explanation," she said. "I am going to pay a long-promised visit to my uncle and aunt in Sumatra. We live—that is, father and I—on Menado, just north of the Makassar strait. All we see of the outside world is an occasional trading schooner; and so when Captain Laynton put in to ride out a few days' bad weather, with him came the opportunity I was speaking of."

"He said he was to touch at a number of ports beginning with Pobi and work down to Singapore. Well, at Singapore I can get passage across to Sumatra, and that's the whole story. You see"—she was demurely serious now—"I have been very precise because I understand that you are really in command now, and if you disapproved too terribly you might order me ashore at the first port."

"Put you ashore!" exclaimed Wallen with a laugh. "Not much! Besides, we're not touching at any port before Singapore. And"—with sudden inspiration—"I'll tell you what, Miss MacKay, we'll run you over to Sumatra from there, if you like."

"Oh, will you?" she cried excitedly. "That will be splendid! But"—hesitantly—"that's asking altogether too much."

"It isn't asking anything at all!" he assured her warmly. "The debt will be on my side."

"It's perfectly splendid of you!" she said again enthusiastically. "I don't know how to thank you." Her hand, cool and soft, touched his lightly upon the rail.

He clasped it frankly. "Then that settles the bargain, Miss MacKay!" he declared.

She withdrew her hand, nodding her head prettily; and then the dark eyes that were smiling into his grew suddenly troubled.

"I have never heard so strange a thing before as this," she said; "of you, and—and your connection with this ship. And—I've been trying to say it, and didn't quite know how—about your father's loss—I'm so sorry, Mr. Wallen."

"Thank you," he said quietly—and turned away for a moment.

His father's death! He had not even yet come to realize it, except in that cold, merciless desire for vengeance upon the man or men who had been guilty of his father's murder. And now her words brought that thought again surging uppermost in his mind. He faced her once more gravely.

"Could you tell me anything about him—about how it happened, Miss MacKay?" he asked.

"Only what Captain Laynton has probably told you already," she answered slowly. "It was before the ship reached Menado, you know—before I came aboard."

"Yes, of course!" said Wallen. He had shifted his position, leaning now with his back against the rail, and, glancing forward along the deck, his eyes fixed suddenly on the wireless house which was quite dark and with no light showing from within. He jerked his hand toward it.

"We've got wireless," he observed.

"But I haven't seen any operator—at least he wasn't at supper."

"Oh, yes, 'he' was!" she laughed.

"I'm the operator."

"You—what!" He was gazing at her in amazement.

"Well, no, not really," she amended. "I'm only joking, or, at least, half joking. It's true, though, that any operating that's done I do."

"You see, the American law requires ships coming under its jurisdiction to carry an installation; but Captain Laynton, having no idea of trading with an American port for some months, anyway, said he didn't see why he should pay wages he didn't have to, and discharged his operator when he left Honolulu."

"Yes," said Wallen quickly. "But you?"

"Conditions of the East again," she told him smilingly. "Father installed a small station on our plantation a few years ago, and that nearest neighbor of ours did likewise. It's been heaps of fun, and, of course, I learned to operate it. I got Captain Laynton's permission, teased Mr. Spree, the chief engineer, into letting me have the power, and I've been amusing myself with it since I've been aboard. But now, sir—with sudden severity—"we are forgetting that you are still an invalid, and I am keeping you up. Please take me below, Mr. Wallen."

"Below! But, no!" he protested. "It's early yet."

"But, yes!" she insisted, gayly imperious, and led the way across the deck. "You shouldn't even have been allowed up for supper, you know!"

Wallen, because he could do nothing else, followed her down the companionway and into the saloon.

And there, despite his good-natured grumbling, she stood and watched him in a quaint motherly way until, perforce, he was obliged to go to his cabin door—and then, with a cheery "Good night," she was gone.

"By Jove!" said Wallen softly to himself.

He locked the door, closed the port-hole securely, switched on the light, and, seating himself on the edge of the bunk, stared at the floor.

"By Jove!" he repeated softly. Then lugubriously: "And it's only three days to Singapore, and—she didn't say where in Sumatra—but that couldn't be more than another three days at the outside."

He sat up suddenly and pulled out of his pocket the envelope that Captain Laynton had given him. He had not examined it yet. He tore the envelope open, shook the contents out onto the bunk, and whistled low, under his breath.

Among other things, but catching his eye instantly, was a little packet of crisp, new, American hundred-dollar gold certificates. He counted them wonderingly—one thousand one hundred dollars. He laid them down and picked up a wallet. It contained some silver and a few dollars in small bills.

Wallen passed his hand a little dazedly across his eyes; and then continued his examination. There was a

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1919.

THE MODERN BANKER.

There was a time when a banker sat at a mahogany desk behind a mahogany railing and waited for business to come his way. His sole function in life as a banker was loaning money. That type of banker could not be called a progressive citizen, for he was out of touch with everything except financial matters.

Times have changed. The successful banker of today is, without exception, one of the most progressive citizens in his community, and will be found in the lead of every movement that spells progress and prosperity for his town. The up-to-date banker develops business instead of waiting for it, and in doing so plays a very large part in the development of his community.

In these days, when charges of profiteering are heard on every hand, it is interesting, encouraging, refreshing, to consider the modern banking system. Through it thousands of industries today have their existence. It stood the tremendous strain of the war without a quiver, and at the same time was daily assisting in industrial development everywhere. It is probably not too much to say that, without the resources that the banks placed at the disposal of the Government, the United States would have been unable to write the glorious page in the world's history that it has written in the last two years. And the remarkable phase of it all is that it did all this without increasing in the least its rates of interest or exchange, a truly wonderful record. Where bank earnings have shown increases it has been through increase in volume of business, not because of charges for service. The modern, progressive bank is, probably, the only single agency that exceeds the modern, progressive newspaper as an upbuilding power in a community.

Saturday South San Francisco will entertain the bankers of five neighboring counties. The Enterprise congratulates this city on the opportunity thus presented. It knows this city is not unmindful of the possibilities involved and will rise to the occasion. To our visitors this paper extends its heartiest welcome. May your tribe increase and may you yet reach the stage where you will treat an overdraft with nonchalance. Then even a newspaper publisher may cross your thresholds with equanimity.

SKINNING THE SHIPBUILDERS.

That is a mild term for the treatment accorded the Pacific Coast shipbuilding industry.

The railroad freight rates on steel have been raised 92 per cent from Pittsburgh and 105 per cent from Chicago to Pacific Coast points.

At such rates freight on steel for an 8800-ton ship amounts to $87,500, a protective tariff in favor of Atlantic Coast shipbuilders.

The common citizen imagines government operation of railroads advanced freights 25 per cent, and does not know this discrimination.

Western shipbuilders are compelled to pay double the freight they paid in 1916, and a rate much higher than even Japan pays on steel.

No steel is allowed to be sent to this coast by water, the shipping board claiming it needs all the ships on the Atlantic seaboard.

The railroad administration is piling up an enormous deficit and therefore it is compelling the shipbuilders to pay the utmost.

The western shipyards proved uncomfortable rivals of Hog Island and hence have to be held down with unjust discriminations.

There was a time when a delinquent subscriber would bring in the amount in chickens, stovewood, or fresh pork, and far be it from us to say that old-fashioned ways are all bad.

The former Empress of Austria has given birth to a son. Perhaps later that boy will realize that he narrowly escaped a catastrophe—being born heir to a throne.

The man who said that South San Francisco did not have a fine climate has been hiding out this week.

We are wondering if the high price of raisins is in any way connected with the discovery that a raisin or two put into a jug develops a wonderful kick.

Two mighty fine things have not gone up in price: Sunshine and the cost of a year's subscription to The Enterprise.

No, sister, profiteering among lovers does not come under the ban. Take as many as he will give you.

Many great men of Europe are evincing a secret desire to come to America and see a nation of greater men.

About every nation in Europe is looking to the United States for assistance in one way or another.

No, we have no objection to price fixing by the government, provided the prices are such as to meet our individual approval.

At least one good result has come out of the war up to date. American designers of women's gowns are coming to the front and Paris styles are rapidly being relegated to the rear. We protest, however, that this does not necessarily indicate that the Paris product is too modest for the ultra-socialized American taste.

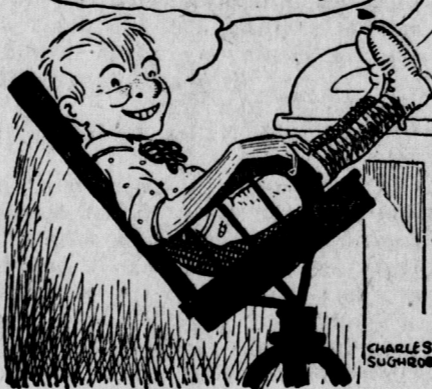

Everybody is handing old Hi Cost a kick—except the fellow who gets the dough.

Uncle Sam has received a good many jolts in his day, but he generally manages to land on both feet with his head up.

VANDALS DAMAGING FLOWER GARDENS IN THIS CITY

Several complaints have been heard of late of vandalism, evidently on the part of children, in flower gardens in different parts of South San Francisco. The miscreants have trampled the plants, pulled off the blossoms, and, in one or two cases, thrown flowers on the ground and left them, after tearing them from the plants. One of the latest instances in point happened one night early this week when the beautiful dahlia garden at the J. E. Sullivan home, a garden that Mrs. Sullivan tends herself and in which she takes a very justifiable pride, was entered and damaged. In most cases if the miscreants wished a few flowers, all that is necessary is to ask to receive them freely.

TO ATTEND M. E. CONFERENCE AT SANTA CRUZ NEXT WEEK

Mrs. J. E. Sullivan and Mrs. Edna Whitten, both of this city, will attend the district conference of the Methodist church, which meets Wednesday of next week in Santa Cruz. Mrs. Sullivan goes as delegate from the local church and from the Ladies' Aid, with Mrs. Whitten as alternate.

ATTEND WHIST PARTY IN SAN FRANCISCO WEDNESDAY

Mesdames Paul Blank, Otto Bohn, Ralph Laederich and George Selby spent Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Edward Farrell in San Francisco. They report having had a most delightful afternoon playing whist. Ed Farrell was formerly a South San Francisco boy and has many friends here.

PRACTICAL RECIPES

Under this heading The Enterprise will publish, from week to week, a series of excellent recipes written especially for this paper by a woman who has had a university training in domestic science and a wide experience in cooking in her own home. Every recipe has been thoroughly tested and will be found economical and palatable.

Cheese Fondue.

- 1 cup hot milk.
- 1 cup soft, stale crumbs.
- 2 cups grated cheese.
- 2 eggs.
- Pinch of pepper.
- 1 tablespoon butter or butter substitute.
- ½ tablespoon salt.
1. Mix all ingredients except the eggs.
2. Add the yolks well beaten.
3. Cut and fold in the stiffly beaten whites.
4. Pour in a buttered baking dish. Bake about thirty minutes in a moderate oven or until the fondue is light and browned over the top. Too hot an oven will cause the cheese to become tough.

This is an excellent meat substitute.

French Baked Potatoes.

1. Pare and cut potatoes lengthwise as for French fried potatoes.
2. Soak in cold, salted water about one hour.
3. Put fat in a shallow pan and when hot put in the potatoes and bake in a hot oven for about three-quarters of an hour or until potatoes are done and crisp and brown. Stir occasionally to prevent sticking.
4. Sprinkle with salt and serve hot.
5. Use just enough fat to prevent sticking to pan (two or three tablespoons) and use a shallow pan with only one layer of potatoes.

Raisin Puffs.

- ½ cup fat.
- 4 tablespoons sugar.
- 1 egg, well beaten.
- 1 cup milk.
- 2 cups flour.
- 3 teaspoons baking powder.
- Salt.
- 1 cup raisins.
1. Cream together the butter and sugar.
2. Add the well-beaten egg.
3. Sift the dry ingredients and add them alternating with the milk.
4. Add the raisins dredged with flour.
5. Pour into buttered cups, filling about two-thirds full, and steam about three-quarters of an hour.

The above makes ten small puddings or five jelly glasses full. Serve with your favorite sauce.

Chocolate Sauce.

- 1½ cups water.
 - ½ cup sugar.
 - 6 tablespoons grated chocolate.
 - 1 tablespoon cornstarch.
 - ½ cup cold water.
 - Speck salt.
 - ½ teaspoon vanilla.
 1. Boil sugar and water five minutes.
 2. Mix the chocolate and sugar with one-half cup cold water and add to the syrup.
 3. Boil three minutes, or until smooth.
 4. Flavor.
- This is delicious on puddings or hot on ice cream.

POP CORN AS FOOD.

Besides being a source of entertainment for the children, pop corn, which is the corn kernel cooked whole, instead of being ground and then cooked, obviously has a high food value, as well as a good taste and when properly prepared for the table it may acceptably take the place of many of the breakfast foods now on the market. Pop corn may be eaten with milk and sugar like other breakfast cereals, or the parched kernels which do not "pop out" can be ground like coffee, and eaten with cream and sugar or can be boiled with water and served like oatmeal.

MEET AT STEARNS HOME TO SEW.

The Ladies' Aid sewing circle of the Methodist church met Thursday with Mrs. D. N. Stearns at her home on Commercial avenue.

LARGE AUDIENCE ATTENDS BENEFIT

The benefit entertainment given by the Employees' Welfare Club of the Western Meat Company at the high school auditorium Saturday evening proved very successful from every standpoint. The hall was filled nearly to its capacity, the program was excellent, and the dance held afterward was enjoyed by a majority of those present in the early part of the evening.

All numbers on the program were so good that none can be chosen for special mention. The instrumental trios given by Mrs. Van Valin, Earle, and Rose Van Valin on the piano, violin, and violoncello were excellent, the vocal numbers rendered by Mrs. H. S. Verney of San Francisco, the piano solo by Mrs. A. Sessions of San Mateo and the dances by Virginia Burt of the same place all pleased the audience, as did the readings by Mrs. Merrill. J. G. Walker of this city rendered tenor selections in a finished manner, responding to several encores. The singing and dancing by San Francisco students of the dramatic art appearing under the management of Florence M. Wigney of San Francisco were very fine indeed. John Bowler, substituting for E. Farrell, proved himself a monologist of considerable ability, while R. Wartenberg, Charles Larsen, Charles Elder, W. Sullivan, and J. J. Bowler staged a short sketch called "Rooms 44 and 45" that brought down the house. The skit was under the management of Mr. Elder and showed that much time and hard work had been expended in its preparation. The stage settings were in charge of William Conklin, and called forth many favorable comments from the audience.

About $150 was cleared by the entertainment and will go to two incapacitated employees of the Western Meat plant, for whom the benefit was arranged.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The staff for the high school publication, The Iris, has been chosen as follows: Editor-in-chief (selected for scholarship), Beatrice Elkerenkotter, class of '20; business manager, Darrel Dart, '20; assistant business manager, Raymond Spangler, '21; literary department, Bernice Carroll, '22; school activities and debating, Bernice Holbrook, '21; joshes, Raymond Spangler, '21; girls' athletics and dramatics, Margaret Carmody, '20; boys' athletics, James McMills, '20; alumni, Josephine Pene, '20; freshman representative, Albert Beltrami, '23.

Football practice began Wednesday. The American game will be played. While the material for a team is short and small in size, that deficiency is made up for in enthusiasm and determination to win the game.

Principal Adams, who will coach the team, knows the game thoroughly, having played it for over ten years. Following is the schedule of league games: October 11th, at Redwood; October 18th, Campbell at South San Francisco; October 25th, at Mountain View; November 1st, Redwood at South San Francisco; November 8th, at Campbell; November 15th, Mountain View at South San Francisco.

Preparations are being made for the freshman party at the high school Friday night.

CARE OF CORN MEAL.

As a result of the nation-wide appeal to economize and conserve our food supply, there has been a marked increase in the use of corn meal. Care should be taken to get meal that has been recently ground from sound, clean, well-dried corn, and to see that it is kept sound and sweet by storing it in a well-closed receptacle in a cool, dry place. A two weeks' supply is about all that it is ordinarily safe to provide for the household. To be

HEALTH SERVICE IS NOW READY FOR WORK

The monthly meeting of the Welfare and Health Service was held at San Mateo recently. A large number of the directors were present, the future work and its extension being the subject of discussion. The large amount of public health nursing needed in the county makes it a big matter to decide what must be the first undertaken, as all the work cannot be started at once, the funds being limited to the subscriptions and income of the Welfare Shop.

At the present time the organization has three nurses in the field, with a fourth to be employed at once. Three automobiles have been ordered and are on the way, as in this county a nurse, in order to reach as large a number of patients as possible, must have an automobile. When these arrive there will be one for each nurse.

A superficial survey has been made by Miss Rourke, the supervising nurse, and she finds an enormous amount of work to be done. There are four hundred families in need of nursing service. In the schools there are 7273 children, many needing physical examinations, of course, it is understood, with parents' consent. In June in an examination of 120 children, 100 needed dental attention, and during the vacation most of these children have been taken care of in the clinics of the association. This shows the great need of the work.

Any one needing a nurse's care, whether he can pay a little or nothing, can call San Mateo 349 between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m., and a nurse will come as soon as possible. Allowances may be made for the wide territory covered and the delay this may involve.

The two new nurses who have just arrived are Miss Minnie Nyberg and Miss Ida Anderson, who have just returned from overseas duty in France with the American Red Cross.

POSTOFFICE OFFICIAL SAYS FOOD DELIVERIES START SOON

Superintendent of Mails W. L. St. Amant of San Francisco was in town Wednesday and assured Superintendent F. W. Sink of the local postoffice that delivery of army food supplies to those who have ordered them would start within a few days, probably the first of next week. The San Francisco postoffice has not delivered earlier, as it has been expecting large shipments from eastern points. Mr. St. Amant states that it may be impossible to deliver some lines ordered, in which case money paid will be refunded.

Don't let any vegetables go to waste this fall. It will be wise economy to store all that you do not can, dry, pickle, or brine. A well-ventilated cellar is a convenient storage place. If there is no available space here an outdoor pit storage is satisfactory. Select a well-drained spot, pile the vegetables in a shallow trench, cover with straw, then a layer of dirt, etc., to protect from freezing, and provide ventilation at the top.

One medium potato gives as much body fuel as two slices of bread and more than one egg. The tissue-building material, protein, is present only in slight amount, so that milk, cheese, eggs, fish, and meat, which are rich in protein, are the logical foods to eat with potatoes. However, the small quantity of protein which the potato contains is of an especially valuable kind. Potatoes are rich in the mineral matter necessary to keep the body in condition.

CHOOSSES THIRTY DAYS IN JAIL RATHER THAN FINE FOR TEMPER

Judge J. J. Dowd heard two cases in the city recorder's court this week. The first resulted in Joe McGinnis, a rough-looking customer, claiming to be a guest at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco, getting a sentence of thirty days in jail. McGinnis entered Jennings' drug store Tuesday and asked for some writing paper, declaring he was writing for the American magazine. A box was supplied him and, after using several sheets, he demurred at paying for it. On Mr. Jennings' insistence the man lost his temper and taking a dollar from his pocket hurled it down on the showcase breaking the glass. On being given a personally conducted trip to Judge Dowd's office by Marshal Conrad, McGinnis offered to pay for the glass if Jennings would drop the matter. Jennings agreed to do so, but on learning that the cost might be some fifteen or twenty dollars McGinnis decided he would rather go to jail, and to jail he went.

A suit for $140 alleged due for professional services was heard, the plaintiff being W. E. Gorham, a nurse, the defendant E. C. Page, formerly of this city. Page contracted smallpox while staying at a hotel in this city early this summer. He was removed to the county hospital, where Gorham took care of him. Page refuses to pay Gorham's charges, declaring that he did not hire him but that he was hired by the city instead. Judge Dowd took the matter under advisement, his decision to be rendered Saturday of this week.

PACIFIC COAST BALL TEAM TO GIVE DANCE TOMORROW

The recently organized ball team of the Pacific Coast Steel workers will give a dance at Fraternal Hall tomorrow night. Practically all the members of the team are local boys and it is believed there will be a big crowd in attendance. Dancing will continue until 2 o'clock.

K. OF C. CELEBRATION TO BE HELD AT PORTOLA

On next Sunday, September 28th, the Knights of Columbus of San Mateo county and the Catholic residents generally, will make a pilgrimage to Portola to celebrate the inauguration of Father Lacombe in his new parish and also the anniversary of the establishment of the first Catholic church in San Mateo county. Father Lacombe, formerly chaplain of the Sixty-second U. S. Infantry, will celebrate mass at 11 in the morning, after which the K. of C. will take charge. A tent reminiscent of war times, set up in a conspicuous place will invite everybody in to partake of the good things that a K. of C. secretary knows so well how to set out. A prominent speaker will tell, briefly, of the days of the pioneers; music, dancing, and games will fill the remaining hours.

Those intending to go and having a seat or two to spare in their cars are asked to notify Judge E. E. Cunningham of this city or J. J. Jones of San Bruno.

ATTEND DAHLIA EXHIBITION.

A number of residents of South San Francisco attended the dahlia show at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco. Among those who went from this town were Mrs. J. E. Sullivan, Mrs. A. Sorenson, Mrs. Winterhalter, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Walker.

can tell the quality of V. & T. Special Cigars. He knows the long Havana filler of well-cured tobacco gives a fine full flavor and a tempting fragrance. He knows the binder and wrapper keeps all the flavor inside the cigar until it is drawn out by the smoker. The one thing he does not quite understand is how so good a cigar as the V. & T. Special can be sold for so little a price: 10 cents.

Electric Coffee Percolators Are a Cherished Possession

When Electric Percolators were introduced there was a revolution in the art of making coffee. The old coffee pot had to go the way of other old-time things, because electrically percolated coffee was so much better. It is clear as amber and saves the cost of an egg to clear, and that counts for something at the present price of eggs.

The Electric Percolator does not have to be watched—it never boils over; it is always ready and the cost of operating is normal.

Perhaps you have one, and can attest the truth of what we have said—then think what a splendid gift one would make for some friend.

LADIES' AID PLANS WHIST PARTY

The Ladies' Aid of the St. John's Ladies' Aid is planning a whist party for Saturday evening, September 13th, at Carpenter's Hall. There will be ten prizes offered. A charge of 25 cents will be made for score cards, while refreshments will be 10 cents.

WANT HOUSES NUMBERED

Many residents of San Bruno think the houses in this city ought to be numbered and do not hesitate to say they think this would be a step in line with the spirit of progress. Some comments are being heard, too, to the effect that the main street of the town would stand repairing in several places.

You can refurbish nearly everything if you have the money—except a vacant mind.

BOYS' AND GIRLS' CENTER TO OPEN THREE DAYS A WEEK

The boys' and girls' center will be open from 2:30 to 5:30 afternoons Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. Sunday it will open from 1:30 to 3 in the afternoon for children under 15 years and from 3 to 5 for children over 15. All children will be welcome and responsible persons will be in charge. Children will not be allowed the use of pool and card tables unless they bring permission from their parents. Every Friday and Saturday evenings there will be dancing. An admission will be charged these nights, and proceeds will go to further equip the social hall and children's playground. Saturday evening, September 20th, a whist party will be given, the receipts from which will go to pay for the piano recently purchased for the center.

ROOF NEED ATTENTION?

Marvelseal Liquid Roof Cement

GUARANTEED FOR TEN YEARS

MARVELSEAL LIQUID ROOF CEMENT is a weatherproof compound for protecting, preserving and renewing roofs and metal siding. Just one coat is needed on any surface. You receive a written guarantee for ten years.

Marvelseal is made from tough, elastic gums, waterproof oils and asbestos fibre. It adheres firmly to the entire surface, forming a tough, tenacious coating. A single coat equals in thickness five to ten coats of paint and in protective value it excels the paint.

FOR ANY KIND OF ROOFING. Marvelseal gives service and protection on metal, composition, shingles, concrete, canvas or gravel roofs. On porous concrete roofs, wood shingles or old composition roofing that has become spongy through injury, wear or neglect, it enters the pores and acts as a powerful preservative, at the same time providing a tough, durable and weathertight coating.

CHEAPER THAN PAINT. With paint, at least two coats are necessary, usually three on porous roofing, doubling or tripling the labor cost and even three coats of paint do not equal in thickness, durability or protection one coat of Marvelseal. Paint must be put on thin. The average paint coat is less than one-hundredth of an inch thick. Even when carefully applied tiny defects enlarge into pinholes, become large bare patches, develop leaks, cause deterioration of the roofing and other ills.

MARVELSEAL IS WEATHERPROOF. It is absolutely rainproof and does not soften and run in hot weather. It is highly elastic and expands and contracts with the surface instead of cracking and peeling like a thin, brittle coat of paint.

STOPS LEAKS. A coat of Marvelseal stops the small leaks which are hard to locate. It seals all small holes and cracks, opened joints, seams, etc. It closes rust holes and checks further corrosion of old tin, iron or galvanized metal practically worn out, permitting added years of service at little cost.

SKILLED LABOR NOT NEEDED. The ordinary laborer can apply Marvelseal rapidly in a continuous, unbroken coating. Only a single application is needed, costing only the fraction of the cost of painting. Put up in colors which have a beautiful and lasting lustre.

ASK SERVICE MEN TO REGISTER.

That no man who served in the war may be overlooked in the preparations for the "welcome home" celebration of September 20th, it is desired that all men of every branch of the service register at the office of E. E. Cunningham.

DATE FOR WELCOMING SERVICE MEN POSTPONED TO NOV. 11TH

It has been announced that the state committee in charge of plans for a state-wide "Welcome Home Day" for returned service men has postponed the date, originally set for September 25th, to November 11th, the anniversary of the signing of the armistice. This, of course, does not in any way affect the date of the celebration planned in this city, which will be held September 20th.

JOE CASTRO MAY RETURN TO HIS HOME HERE SOON

Mrs. Flora Castro returned Monday from a visit with her son, Joe Castro, at Ukiah, Calif. Mrs. Castro reports that Joe, who was taken to the state hospital recently because of a wound in the head he had received while with the American army in France, is much improved in health and may be taken to San Francisco soon for treatment that, it is hoped, will restore his health to the point that will permit of his return to his home in this city. While in Ukiah Mrs. Castro met County Supervisor Thomas Hickey, who had gone to the northern city to inquire into Castro's condition.

JUDGE CUNNINGHAM TO HEAD ROOSEVELT MEMORIAL COM.

Judge E. E. Cunningham of this city has been appointed chairman of the Roosevelt Memorial Association of San Mateo county. This organization, composed of friends and admirers of former President Roosevelt, is planning a campaign to secure $55,000,000 by popular subscriptions in the United States to erect a fitting monument for Colonel Roosevelt in Washington, D. C., and to purchase grounds for a memorial at Oyster Bay. The association hopes ultimately to secure Sagamore Hill, the Roosevelt home to be preserved in Roosevelt's memory. The campaign is to be strictly non-partisan.

J. W. McINTYRE, FOREMAN AT THE STEEL MILLS, DIES

James William McIntyre, carpenter foreman at the Pacific Coast Steel mill, who was fatally injured Thursday of last week, died at the South San Francisco Hospital Friday afternoon. At the inquest, held Saturday, a verdict of death "from rupture of the liver, caused by being struck by a heavy timber," was returned. The body was taken to Santa Cruz for burial.
